CONTRIBUTORS TO THIS NUMBER

DAVID JAYNE HILL
is one of the foremost authorities upon international law now living. He has served the United States as Ambassador to Germany and Minister to Switzerland and The Netherlands, and was Assistant Secretary of State from 1898 to 1903. His writings include A History of European Diplomacy and Impressions of the Kaiser.

SYDNEY BROOKS
is one of the ablest English publicists. His contributions to important magazines on both sides of the Atlantic have won him an international reputation.

OLIVER M. SAYLER
is a graduate of Oberlin College. He was in Moscow during the Bolshevik Revolution and saw the course of the revolution in many other places as well, and the present paper embodies some of his impressions. He is Dramatic Editor of The Indianapolis News and contributes to numerous periodicals.

FRANCES A. KELLOR, a well-known sociologist, is now chairman of the Division of Aliens in the Resource Mobilization Bureau in New York State. In 1910 she was appointed the Chief Investigator in the Bureau of Industries and Immigration of the Department of Labor. She is the author of a number of volumes relating to social economics, which include Experimental Sociology, Out of Work, and Education of Women by Athletics.

LT. COLONEL H. H. SARGENT, U. S. A., one of the foremost strategists of the United States, was, until after the armistice, on duty with the General Staff in Washington. This first paper is one of a series commenting on the strategy of the war on the Western Front. His notable volumes already published include: The Campaign of Santiago de Cuba, The Campaign of Marengo, and Napoleon Bonaparte's First Campaign.
